Professional Experience

Amelia has a strong background in civil and commercial litigation, focusing on large scale international litigation over recent years.

Amelia commenced litigation practice in Adelaide before working for one of the leading international litigation firms in London where she was involved in a number of complex cross-border disputes.

Amelia's litigation experience has covered a number of industry sectors, with a recent focus on disputes in the insurance, reinsurance and financial services industries. Amelia has acted in large scale and complex litigation cases involving high-level international insurance fraud, professional negligence, product liability, engineering and construction, property and casualty and pharmaceuticals. She has acted for Lloyds' Syndicates, major London, European, US and Bermudian insurers and other clients in proceedings and disputes in Australia, United Kingdom, New York and other state jurisdictions in the United States, Bermuda and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Amelia has participated in a number of international arbitrations, mediations and commercial negotiations, consistently achieving excellent results for clients.

Amelia graduated from the University of Adelaide with Honours in Law and a Bachelor of Commerce, for which she was awarded a prize for the most outstanding graduate.

Amelia's commercial acumen and keen interest in the issues clients face, combined with broad international experience and a practical approach to the preparation for large scale litigation ensures consistently outstanding results for clients.
